Tech Update

Selection of Processing Oils for Rubber Products

Rubber compounding is the complex, multidisciplinary science of selecting and blending the appropriate combination of elastomers and other ingredients to meet the performance, manufacturing, environmental, and cost requirements for rubber goods made and used in commerce.

Tech Update

Hybrid cure on basis of Crosslinking Peroxides & Sulfur Accelerators: Best of Both Worlds?

Selecting the correct cure system to vulcanize elastomers is frequently dictated by the technical requirements as specified for the final product. Based upon final end requirements, recipe designers select from a multitude of cure additives frequently however the selected systems lead to compromises in compound-, cure- and/or final product properties.
